$300 Is Stolen At Wellsville

Cab Owner Robbed At Yule Tree Lot

County law enforcement officers were continuing their search today in the $300 robbery of a Wellsville man which occurred on the Wells-Hollow Road just east of Wellsville Tuesday afternoon at 4.

The victim of the robbery was Frank Moore of Wellsville who operated a Christmas tree stand at the entrance of the Wells-Hollow Road. Moore is also proprietor of the Safeway Cab Co. of Wellsville.

He told police he saw two men get out of a parked car and walk toward him. One man then approached him and stuck a gun in his stomach and told him to put his hands up. In the meantime, the first man had approached Moore from behind and told him the same thing while sticking something in his back, police related. Moore wasn't sure it was a gun or not.

The two bandits searched Moore's pockets and took his wallet which contained about $300. Later reports, although vague, had the amount as high as $800.

The men, both unmasked, then walked away from Moore and with the help of a third man, who acted as a lookout, got into their car and headed toward East Liverpool.

Moore told police that the men overlooked some $1,000 which he had in his car and $200 which he had in his shirt pocket.

After the men fled, Moore ran about a half-block and phoned the Wellsville police.

Moore told police he had that much money because it was a day's receipts from both the Christmas tree stand and the taxi cabs. He said he hadn't been able to get to a bank.

The victim was unable to give any accurate description of the bandits.

Annexation Move To Be Considered

The men plan to sell the acreage in 175 building lots.

Fisher said "The streets and utility facilities at the building lots will be supplied at no cost to the city."

Both the county commissioners and City Council must approve the annexation before it can take effect.

LAMCOATS — On western sheep ranches from California to as far east as Wisconsin, where losses of new-born lambs normally run up to 40 per cent, plastic coats have helped reduce death rates. Called lamcoats, and made of vinyl plastic, they serve to keep the lambs warm and dry, and hold in body heat. The snug-fitting coat is slipped over the head of the new-born lamb, and the forelegs are placed in front of the elastic belyband that holds the coat in place. The coat can be shed if caught on brush by means of break-away seams. The special seams also enable the lamb to shed the coat in about two weeks or when it reaches a weight of 18 to 20 pounds.

President Plays Host to Family

Eisenhowers Have Turkey, Trimmings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower remained in a holiday mood today — with no appointments scheduled — after celebrating Christmas with his family at the White House.

He planned to stay in the White House with his family.

But it is expected the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will leave soon, possibly Friday, for their Gettysburg, Pa., farm. There, Eisenhower hopes to get some rest, mixed with work.

The President like many another grandfather, played host to his family on Christmas. The Eisenhowers had turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, in the evening in the second-floor living quarters.

Eisenhower and the First Lady did not attend church services. They had been to a pre-Christmas service Sunday. The National Presbyterian Church, where they usually worship, had a midnight service, but none on Christmas Day.

The President's son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John S. Eisenhower, arrived with their four children in the late afternoon. Two-year-old Mary Jean toddled ahead to be first into the arms of her grandmother for a big hello kiss.

The President, in a gray flannel suit and blue tie, was smiling, but not saying much, as the family moved into the East Room to pose for pictures in front of an 18-foot Christmas tree decorated with tinsel and white lights.

There was no indication what gifts the Eisenhowers exchanged.

Strikes Out on Economic Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said today the Eisenhower administration has been too slow in moving to counter the current economic slump.

Sparkman announced the Senate Housing subcommittee which he heads will start hearings soon to inquire, among other things, why the White House "waited so long" to release 17 million dollars which Congress had voted for military housing, urban renewal and cooperative housing programs.

The White House announced money in a move interpreted as intended to help the economy in general and the slumping housing industry in particular.

Housing construction this year has dropped to 926,000 starts. The goal for the year had been a million.

"The biggest boost the administration could give the housing industry and the economy now," Sparkman said, "would be to loosen its tight money policy."

Congress Facing Distasteful Tasks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, returning to work Jan. 7, faces some of the most politically distasteful tasks ever to confront an election-year session.

The prospect is for sharply increased defense spending in the light of Russia's military-scientific advances. This has virtually washed out any chance of general tax reductions.

Furthermore, increased defense demands probably will force Congress to boost the 275-billion-dollar ceiling on the national debt.

These prospects are enough to give the jitters to senators and representatives facing re-election battles next year. The voters will elect all 435 House members and 32 senators next November.

There probably will be some tax "adjustments," but not enough to have widespread voter appeal.

Secretary of Defense McElroy said last Friday his department will seek another billion dollars "for missiles and other things" for the current fiscal year, which will end next June 30.

Defense spending now is at the rate of about 38 1/2 billion dollars a year and officials have talked about raising this by about two billions in the next fiscal year.

Over-all federal spending is running at about 72 billion dollars a year.

Some administration aides have suggested President Eisenhower may send Congress another record peacetime spending budget of 73 billion or more.

The administration is reported considering proposing a multimillion dollar aid to education program, with emphasis on science and mathematics.

While direct taxes as such aren't likely to be increased there is a strong likelihood that Congress will vote to broaden Social Security coverage and boost Social Security taxes.

Black Crepe Replaces Holly Across Nation

By The Associated Press

Black crepe replaced the green holly wreaths in many homes across the nation today as violent accidents took a heavy toll during the Christmas holiday.

More than 200 persons lost their lives in motor vehicle crashes — surpassing the 180 predicted by the safety experts.

The traffic death toll for the 30-hour period from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday (local time) was 201 and final figures were expected to boost the total. Fires took a toll of 26, and 21 other persons lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents for an overall total of 248.

The National Safety Council, which estimated the 180 traffic deaths on the highways as "tragically heavy."

An Associated Press survey made for comparative purposes on the nonholiday 30-hour period from Dec. 10 through Dec. 11 showed 84 traffic deaths, 15 in fires and 27 miscellaneous accidental deaths for an overall total of 126.

This year's traffic toll compared to the record of 253 for a one-day Christmas holiday period, in 1946. The low mark in traffic fatalities for a one-day Christmas period since World War II was 179 in 1947.

Last year's four-day Christmas holiday period set a record in traffic deaths for any holiday period, with 706. The over-all total of 84 during the same four days also was a record for any holiday period.

Only about half a dozen states reported no traffic deaths. Ohio and New York led the states in fatalities.

Scientists are Exploring Whole, New World

Wonders of Nuclear Science

By DUKE YATES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Hung on a display board in one of the laboratories of Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus are two small plastic bottles that have been exposed to high temperatures.

One of the bottles is a misshapen blob, distorted, like most plastics, by heat. But the other bottle, though made of the same plastic, has retained its shape.

Up in one corner of the board are two slices of bread. Each was sealed in a transparent bag last Oct. 31. One of the slices, as you would expect, is covered with mold. But the other slice remains as fresh as the day it was purchased.

These modest exhibits are the harbingers of a coming revolution in our way of life that will be brought about by the peaceful application of nuclear radiation—that deadly byproduct of the atom bomb.

Exploring New World

Harnessed in the laboratory, however, radiation is being used by the scientists at Battelle to explore a whole new world. That new looking plastic bottle and the fresh slice of bread were exposed to radiation.

Food preservation and the improvement of numerous products such as plastics are two of perhaps a score of major research projects in nuclear science now in progress at Battelle.

Battelle scientists are engaged in studies ranging from the use of radiation to sterilize drugs to the design of reactors for atomic powered aircraft.

Much of their work involves designing parts for nuclear power reactors. Some of the basic design work on the reactor for the first atomic powered submarine, the Nautilus, was done at Battelle.

The Institute's nuclear research center is under the direction of Battelle's physics department manager, Dr. H. R. Nelson. Dr. Nelson also is a member of an Atomic Energy Commission advisory committee and a member of the Ohio Atomic Energy Advisory Board.

Located In Farm Country

Battelle's nuclear research facilities are located in Columbus and near West Jefferson. The center's major radiation laboratories are at West Jefferson in the midst of the rolling farm country, about 14 miles west of Columbus in Madison County. They are in a group of three brick and metal buildings situated on a small 1-1/2.

Here is the so-called "hot-cell" laboratory where experiments with intensely radioactive materials are conducted by remote control.

Here also is the critical assembly laboratory where full-scale models of nuclear power plants—such as that which drives the Nautilus—are tested behind concrete shields. Their operation is observed by means of closed circuit television.

Is Heart of Center

But the heart of the center is the nuclear reactor—a concrete monster that towers nearly three stories inside a specially constructed building.

A nuclear reactor is essentially a controlled atomic explosion. What goes on inside the reactor is identical with what occurs in an atomic blast—except that the process is much slower.

The Battelle instrument, one of the largest pool-type reactors in the world, was completed last year at a cost of $770,000. At full power it can generate enough energy to light the homes of a small village.

Yet this reactor is not intended to make use of atomic power. In general, there are two types of reactors—power reactors which use the heat generated by nuclear fission to generate electricity or other forms of power, and research reactors which use the radiation by-products of fission for scientific research. The Battelle reactor is of this latter type.

The core of the Battelle reactor—the place where fission occurs—is about the size of an upended suitcase. It consists of an arrangement of aluminum shielded uranium plates suspended near the bottom of a 28-foot deep pool of water hence the name pool-type reactor. The pool acts as a radiation shield as do the concrete sides of the pool. In places, the pool sides are six feet thick.

The reactor fuel consists of 8.8 pounds of a uranium alloy containing 90 per cent U235—the fissionable form of uranium. The fuel is valued at $8,000 a pound.

The uranium cannot be purchased, however. It belongs by law to the Atomic Energy Commission and is leased to Battelle. At full power, the reactor uses up about $17 worth of uranium—about three one hundredths of an ounce—a day.

Nuclear fission in the uranium fuel begins when the control rods are withdrawn from the core. The control rods consist of a substance—in this case a compound of boron and carbon—which absorbs neutrons. Neutrons are the energy particles that cause fission.

When the control rods are lowered into the core they shut down the reaction by preventing the flow of neutrons. The control rods are withdrawn by electromagnets and can be dropped back into the core in an instant should any emergency arise or whenever a particular experiment is concluded. Dropping the control rods is called "slamming the reactor." Slamming stops fission almost at once.

In operation the reactor core and the area around it glow with a brilliant blue light. This is called the Cerenkov effect. It is caused by high speed energy particles which as they leave the core are slowed by the water and give off part of their energy as light.

The reactor is used to test the effect of radiation on various materials. Substances to be tested are brought close to the reactor core either by suspending them in the pool or placing them in what are called beam tubes. These are tubes which open through the concrete base of the reactor and provide access to the core.

After irradiation, the test materials are transferred in radiation proof containers to the hot cell laboratory for further study. What would happen if the fission in the reactor ever got out of control? That would be almost impossible because of safety factors built into the instrument. These would automatically "slam" the reactor at the first sign that fission was rising above the safety level.

But even if fission did get out of hand, there would be no atomic explosion. The fuel elements would melt and the increased radiation of the high fission level would make the building and area around it unsafe. So central Ohio residents need not worry that they will wake up some morning to see a mushroom cloud hovering on the horizon in the direction of their capitol city.

Will Europeans Hang Together?

Main discovery by the United States last week was Europe's stiffening reluctance to let Washington run with the ball.

The John Foster Dulles line of cynical despair about getting anywhere with the Kremlin in negotiations was rejected.

The main mission of President Eisenhower, which had been represented, whether accurately or not, as an agreement on missile bases in Europe, was watered down to an iffy agreement to let the United States set up missile bases if, when and maybe. It was inconclusive.

What was conclusive, by contrast, was the firm intent of the European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to explore the possibility of reaching an understanding with the Kremlin.

This is the appraisal of the NATO conference by the observers who were on the scene. It is, moreover, the appraisal reflected in the NATO conference declaration.

The United States has lost the dominance it wielded over NATO as a regional alliance to beef up European defenses after the Soviet Union's failure to demobilize in 1945 raised the threat of military expansion.

Its purpose then was to preserve the right of self-determination among the free nations of Europe. It seems now to have accomplished its purpose. NATO nations are in a mood to practice somewhat more self-determination than is relished by Americans who agree with Secretary Dulles that it amounts to a weakening of the common front against Russian expansionism.

But there is another possibility that always has been implicit in NATO. It was created not only as a military alliance but as a framework for political, economic and cultural cooperation.

Thus, it is potentially a basis for the European federation that statesmen have dreamed about for so many generations. Modern statesmen like West Germany's Konrad Adenauer are hoping to bring the dream to realization.

They believe it is possible for the European bloc to develop a new status for itself by joint action — to become, in fact, a federation of sovereignties capable of cooperation and consultation on common problems. Such a federation, backed by the skills and resources of the combined populations of the European nations, would constitute a major factor in the international balance of power.

Actually, this is what the United States has been trying to bring into being with its various programs of military assistance and economic aid for the benefit of European nations. If Washington is no longer free to run with the ball in NATO, it could be evidence that its foreign policy aims are being achieved, not rejected.

Something Now For Something Later

In their official report to the American people, President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles will give background and details of their effort to beef up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But the report of the NATO conference was made known before they left Paris. As far as the United States is concerned, the conference proved to be an exchange of something now for something later.

The "something now" was an agreement among NATO members to open the door to negotiations with the Soviet Union on the basis of Premier Bulganin's proposals on the eve of the NATO conference.

The "something later" was an agreement to let the United States store nuclear missiles on the territory of NATO members when the missiles are ready for operational use — and if the various parliaments find no objection.

Because the missiles are not yet ready, because the actual storage points were not specified and are subject to further negotiation and because the NATO conference revealed a trend toward neutralism, the "something later" end of the exchange is too iffy to be conclusive.

There may be no reason to believe that negotiations on the Bulganin proposals are not just as iffy, but they can be done in the immediate future. Since negotiating was contrary to the idea of the U.S. delegation about the best way to deal with the Kremlin, it is plain that the United States was rebuffed to the extent that its view was rejected.

This government believes there can be no hope of successful diplomacy with the Soviet Union. It believes there is no sense in even becoming a party to any negotiation with the Soviet Union without bringing enough military strength to bear to force the Kremlin to respect NATO power. It believes the sole purpose of the U.S.S.R. diplomatic overture is to propagandize the West and weaken the anti-Soviet coalition.

The NATO conference revealed clearly what had been surmised dimly — that there is a widening breach of conviction between the Christmas topped all previous ones at our house for drama. Algeria, the Middle East and Cape Canaveral were comparatively quiet. Dad had a rocket in his thigh shortly after dawn. He wanted to quit, but Little Willie said the initial test was a failure and sent up a new one which went up as high as popper's shoulder. Mother had been struck by a spaceship at 7:10 and Harold, aged 6, was upset because he had timed it for 7:03. Jennifer, aged 5, was in a tantrum because, while her Christmas doll could talk and sing, it had no fire — power.

Once Over

WE HAD BOUGHT a rubber toy for "Toots," the puppy, but refused to play with it when he found it didn't beep. By 10 o'clock the neighborhood kids had been over, together with the fire department and a police car.

Most of the moppets had brought homemade rockets, which seemed to give better results than those made by the Army and Navy. One went up through the housetop taking the Christmas tree and father's left ear with it.

The Jenks boy, who brought it over, said this was strange, because the count down had shown everything working.

LITTLE OSCAR HORWITZ came over wearing his space suit and asked to be locked in the deep freeze unit. It was okay with us.

He Hoskins boy had a sled that needed no snow. Just dynamite. Around noontime the house next door disappeared. Something had gone wrong with a toy.

At 1 p.m. dad died, leaving a note saying he was going to the United Nations to see if he could get Dag Hammarskjöld to come over and restore order. Mother? Nobody has seen her since Junior got her to try out a new pair of skates which never touch the ground and take the owner around the world, two laps every 24 hours. (Noel! Noel! With smelling salts, if you don't mind.)

United States and the other 14 NATO governments. Norway and Denmark openly headed up a neutralist movement at Paris. The Netherlands, France and Belgium openly let it be known they expected more U.S. sympathy for their colonial problems as the price of showing continued enthusiasm for NATO. West Germany revealed that its primary interest is reunification with East Germany.

The NATO conference was not a success in the sense that it solved any problems. But it was a success in the sense that it showed what the problem are. An alliance which originated in a shared desire to keep Communist Russia from taking over Europe by default has been weakened appreciably by Europe's desire to keep itself from becoming the battleground for what is beginning to look like irreconcilable disagreement between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The only way to strengthen NATO now is to show that the Bulganin proposals for finding some way to live without war are, in fact, nothing but propaganda. The hot potato that was cooked at Paris had been handed to the Kremlin. It has to prove something now.

Steelworkers Stay Put

American Iron and Steel Institute paints a statistical picture of steelworkers that shows the results of high wage scales, safety practice and good working conditions. For most steelworkers, steel now is a lifetime job.

Over half have more than 10 years of service. The average steelworker is 42 years old and has worked for the same company more than 13 years. At the top of the age group in steel are 27 workers out of each thousand who are more than 65 years old yet continue to work, rather than retire on their company-paid pension benefits and social security benefits.

Of the steelworkers with less than 10 years' service, 25 per cent have 5 to 9 years and 21 per cent have up to 5 years. Still another tribute to steel as an employer is the fact that 13 per cent of all wage workers were hired after they had reached their 40th birthdays.

HAPPY CHANDLER of Old Kaintuck, pinched for hunting ducks after hours, was excused and buried in apologies on the ground that, since he was hunting with game officials, he assumed everything was legal. Most folks thought a governor was supposed to know the laws and that a sportsman always checked on rules and regulations, no matter who was in the party. What about the state game law officials? Oh, well, maybe they assumed Happy would keep them posted. Did anybody apologize to the DUCKS? Fans of the "Winchell File" are amazed at the really top dramatic acting of Walter, who performs with a punch, and yet does it in a restrained manner. Winchell, of course, got his start in the theater as a boy, but not in the field of tense drama, where he is now perfectly at home.

A Golden Era Is Ending

By TED CRONIN

The overseas escape hatch is slowly closing on thousands of Americans caught in the current unemployment squeeze, and the era of the globe-trotting worker has just about passed into history.

During the 12 boom years following World War II, American industry begged career men and women to fill high-paying positions in their overseas branches. Construction jobs paid $1,000 a month to men with only two years of field experience. Oil workers and clerical help averaged 20 per cent more take-home pay than their brothers and sisters back in the states.

Add to this a tax write-off to workers staying overseas for at least 18 continuous months and the job plums look rich indeed.

Today, with unemployment rising above the 2½ million mark, the doors of U.S. industry are closed to the applicant looking for overseas work.

The biggest reason for dwindling foreign jobs is fierce competition from foreign companies which is driving U.S. business back inside the continental limits. Using cheaper local labor, foreign contractors are consistently bidding lower than American companies. When an Italian firm won the key contracts for Africa's huge Kariba Dam this year, it meant a multimillion-dollar payroll lost to American personnel.

FOLLOWING in the wake of Alfred Krupp's round-the-world drumming, German companies have jumped from 120 million dollars in contracts in 1955 to close to 50 million in backlog contracts in 1957.

There's a touch of irony in this foreign freeze-out. For years, the U.S. government has written strict local hiring requirements into every subsidized construction or service contract. Under this clause, the American company agrees to hire a certain number of local nationals for every American citizen on the job.

Facilities must also be made available for training unskilled local labor to fill semiskilled and skilled positions in the future. The object of this clause was to strengthen the local labor market, with the help of foreign aid funds. In effect, American industry, with the help of foreign aid funds, has been operating the biggest trade school in the history of man, involving millions of workers in 60 nations.

An example of this is the 100-acre fertilizer plant now nearing completion in Chung-Ju, 80 miles south of Seoul, Korea. Begun as a 23 million dollar gift to the Republic of Korea, the plant will be finished in 1958 at a total estimated cost of 40 million dollars.

FINANCED by the U.S. International Cooperation Administration the building contract went to F. H. McGraw and Co. and Hydrocarbon Research, Inc. Eighty American construction superintendents and administrative help supervised more than 70 Korean laborers during the working day.

In a few months, the pull-out will begin. Except for a few McGraw career men, the American personnel will be slicked from the payroll and sent home. Korean workers and managers are completing their training for the 1958 take-over.

Nurtured by the cold war, heavy defense construction has long since passed its peak stage in almost every country in the world. The State Department announced recently that it was not considering building new bases in Europe for guided missiles units, but will convert existing installations.

Lead foremen, who were pulling down $10,000 a year in Spain for the U.S. Air Force, are gumily returning to the U.S. to find the building industry caught in the "recession," too, and in no mood to hire.

Coming down from Alaska and the Canadian north are the men who built the Distant Early Warning line and the Mid-Canada line, defense projects that cost three-quarters of a billion dollars. The need for cold-weather welders or asphalt inspectors has disappeared.

NEW DEFENSE PROJECTS, financed by ICA and a new Export-Import Bank funds, will be built exclusively by cheaper local labor. The sizeable American labor force working overseas is due to return home in heavy numbers see the jobless figures top the three million mark.

A few employment bright spots do exist. Given a boost by a 27 per cent tax write-off, the big oil companies — Phillips Petroleum in Venezuela, International Petroleum in Peru, Aramco in Arabia — have been gaining momentum since 1945.

With U.S. help a 13 million dollar highway system is slicing through the jungles of Laos and Cambodia; India is lowering the barriers for U.S. industrial plant designers; Eritrea, on the African banks of the Red Sea, is welcoming American know-how and Indonesia, particularly in Sumatra, is feeling the onslaught of American-operated bulldozers.

But except for these instances, the U.S. skilled worker is persona non grata overseas. The "Golden years" have come to a close.

Untold Suez Story

When Egypt seized the Suez Canal in midsummer of 1956, many acknowledged experts predicted that President Nasser's government could neither operate it successfully under present conditions nor fit it for tomorrow's growing sea traffic.

Many months have passed since the canal reopened after the major salvage work made necessary by Nasser's own destructive efforts. Egypt is, in fact, running the canal.

Oddly, it appears to be largely an untold story how the Egyptians are managing the waterway in the face of the forecasts that they could not. Little has been said about how fully and efficiently Suez is functioning.

It is known that the canal in the average is not as deep as it formerly was, which indicates dredging operations are not up to standard.

A big question is how many pilots the canal authority has to guide ships through the perilous

Farmers' Plight

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

He's Behind 8-Ball In Food Situation

The American farmers is about to become obsolete as far as food goes in the United States.

That's about the only conclusion to draw from a new report of the U.S. Department of Agriculture which attempts to explain why farmers are getting a steadily smaller share of the money which housewives spend for food.

The tin can which housed the vegetables you had for dinner last night, for example, very likely cost more than the vegetable itself. The same probably goes for any canned fruit you ate. And the cost of advertising and packaging the cereals which you had for breakfast undoubtedly cost much more than the cereal itself.

This kind of screwball situation helps account for the fact that farmers today are getting only 40 cents out of every dollar the housewife spends for food. It represents a steady decline from the 51 cents they were getting out of the average food dollar just after World War II.

The housewife's impulse is to blast the food processors and grocery chains for stealing the farmers' profits during this period. But the USDA report reveals that this isn't the whole answer either.

THE FACT IS, USDA economists find, "in the five-year period 1951-1955—profits to food processors averaged below the preceding five-year period." This has been true since 1955, too.

Further, the report finds, "returns on stockholders' equity in food industries generally are relatively modest in comparison with other industries."

If you can point to any culprits in the growing spread between retail and farm prices they would be taxes, wages of workers in the food processing industries and the cost of equipment.

In the past 10 years the hourly earning of food marketing workers rose about 50 per cent. At the same time the labor costs per unit of machinery increased by 30 per cent. This means that labor-saving machinery and management efficiency got more work out of each man.

BUT THIS SAVINGS tended to be offset by maintenance, depreciation and interest costs resulting from the new processing machinery. And increasing taxes reduced net profits for a average of 46 selected food processing companies to a low of 2.2 per cent of sales in 1956, for example.

The taxes paid by food marketing and processing corporations took about 20 per cent of total profits before World War II. Today taxes take up more than half of total profits.

The housewife has demanded an increased amount of food processing, which has accounted for most of the increased spread between farm and retail prices. She wants frozen strawberries, instant cake flour and ready-made salads. These things cost her more than if she bought the raw foods and prepared them herself.

THE RELATIVE amount spent on processing meats, for example, has gone up 61 per cent since 1947. And the spread between farm and retail prices on fruits and vegetables is now the greatest of all, with the farmer only getting 30 cents on every dollar spent by the housewife on these items. The spread on prices of grains going into bakery products is now the second highest.

Milk dealers and manufacturers of some dairy products have done several things to hold down the farm-retail spread. The less frequent delivery of milk to homes is one of the most important of these innovations. Some have reduced delivery to three days a week.

Costs of assembling milk usually have been reduced where tank trucks have replaced hauling milk in cans. Many plants now have continuous freezers, which save money over older methods.

But the increase in packaging and advertising of other dairy products has caused this general food category to increase about 10 per cent in retail price since 1947, while the price the farmer receives has dropped 6 per cent in the same period.

Even when the food processors go all out to cut their costs and Uncle Sam mails out millions of farm parity payments, the farmers still end up suffering from the retail farm price spread.

'Gloomiest Month'

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This was the gloomiest month for the James C. Hagerty school of public relations.

Hagerty jumped from a needle that exposes one of the thinnest skins in town. His star pupil, Murray Snyder, got caught in a gaudy snafu.

Hagerty is one of the best White House press secretaries ever. For years Snyder served under him as the No. 2 White House press secretary.

No one ever did more to make President Eisenhower look good than these two.

Last February Eisenhower promoted Snyder to one of the most important and touchy public relations jobs in the world. He made him assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

U.S. vs. COMMUNIST STEEL PRODUCTION

THE NARROWING GAP — Steel is the backbone of modern nations. Although, as Newsmap shows, U. S. steel production exceeds the combined totals of the Iron Curtain countries, it is the accelerated rate of Communist production since the end of World War II that has economists concerned. In the past seven years, Russian steel output alone has doubled, compared with a 20 per cent increase in this country. Most Russian production is plowed back into heavy industry. American economists warn that if Soviet expansion continues at its present rate, steel output in the U.S.S.R. will be close to 90 million tons a year by 1972. Communist Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev has set a goal of 100-120 million tons by that year. Data from Steel Magazine.

Grandparents, Youth Die of Asphyxiation

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — A teenage boy and his grandparents were asphyxiated Wednesday night shortly after the youth had gone to their house to exchange presents.

The victims were John E. Revland, 16, John Szmyd, 47, and the latter's wife Minnie, 54. Investigators said it appeared a flue pipe had become blocked, sending fumes into the house.

A neighbor discovered the youth's body in the living room about 8:30 p.m. and he was pronounced dead at a hospital. A relative later found the grandparents' bodies upstairs.

Several presents, still wrapped, also were found upstairs.

MRS. L. C. BATES

By The Associated Press
For the third time in a decade, Queen Elizabeth II is Woman of the Year in American headlines. Women's editors of Associated Press newspapers throughout the country voted her the top woman news personality of the year in their annual poll, following the triumphant visit of Britain's royal couple to the United States and Canada, which produced enough news stories to fill a library.
Previously Elizabeth was voted Woman of the Year in 1947 when she married Philip Mountbatten, now Duke of Edinburgh and again in the year of her coronation, 1953.
Other women voted outstanding in their fields for 1957 are as follows:
SPORTS: Althea Gibson, the 30-year-old tennis player from Harlem, who this year won practically every major championship in the world of international tennis. The lanky, smiling, dark-skinned Althea climaxed an 18-tournament winning streak by taking the women's singles championship at Wimbledon in July, after which she won the National Women's Singles title at Forest Hills in September.

LITERATURE: Grace Metalious, the New Hampshire housewife whose first novel, "Peyton Place" became an unexpected runaway best seller, with present sales figures topping the three million mark. The sensational story of life in a New England village so shocked some academic circles that her husband, George Metalious, lost his job as principal of the Gilman, N.H., public schools, and is now teaching in Stowe, Mass. Mrs. Metalious is the mother of three children.

ENTERTAINMENT: Ingrid Bergman, winner of an Academy Award for her work in the motion picture version of "Anastasia." The Swedish-born actress, who gave up career and family for her controversial romance with Italian movie director Roberto Rossellini, made news also with her personal life this year, when her marriage to her "one true love" ended in a legal separation, with divorce in the offing. She is now in England, at work on a new movie.
BUSINESS: Lucille Ball, one-half of the fantastically successful husband-and-wife team of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, who not only star in their own top-rated show, but also produce a number of other television attractions. The apparently light-headed "Lucy" of the TV screen turns out to have a very solid business head on her flippant shoulders, and at present probably is one of the richest women in Hollywood.

MUSIC: Maria Callas, the American operatic soprano with the "voice of an angel," who has zoomed to the top rank of stars since her debut at the Metropolitan last fall. Maria, now 34, was born in New York of Greek parents and says she was the ugly duckling of the family — fat, awkward and shy. She started studying music at the age of 8, went to Athens at 13 to study at the Royal Conservatory, made her operatic debut in Athens at 15 and became a top operatic star of Europe before her American debut.
EDUCATION: Mrs. L. C. Bates of Little Rock, Ark., who made headlines in September during the integration crisis in the schools of that city. She is president of the Arkansas chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and it was at her home that the nine Negro troops guarded their right to attend the previously all-white high school.

POLITICS: Margaret Chase Smith, the Republican senator from Maine, still the country's only woman senator, and the first to be elected to that office on her own record, not as an appointee to fill a vacancy. Mrs. Smith was a congresswoman for eight years before being elected to the Senate in 1948.
PUBLIC SERVICE: Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late president, still writing a syndicated newspaper column and still making news wherever she goes. Her latest adventure was a 25-day tour of the Soviet Union.

As the children arrived, they were greeted by one of Santa's helpers, portrayed by Woody Deitch, who entertained them during the evening.

Cards were played with prizes going to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mercer of Damascus, and Mr. and Mrs. Audley Schaeffer of Youngstown.
Secret sisters were revealed and gifts exchanged; new names of secret sisters were drawn for the coming year. A grab bag of presents was also enjoyed by the men. A buffet luncheon was served which was planned and arranged by all the members.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

It is more than the end of the year; it is the end of an era. All that Dave Beck can get wholesale now is trouble. His "fixer," the mighty mid-dleman, purveyor to dynasties of dues-dippers, is available no longer.

Nate Shefferman is out of business. He lost his 400 clients after the McClellan committee witnesses told how unions were conjured up or collapsed with equal facility by Shefferman's shadowy agents. Some of those clients stayed on with Shefferman's old Detroit lieutenant, On the East Coast, some of them went over to Louis Jackson, now director of Shefferman's old Labor Relations Associates.

Shefferman may be finished with his business, but the McClellan cottee is not. It has dispatched questionnaires to most of the "fixer's" old clients.

The committee is asking how much Shefferman was paid, in fees and expenses. It wants to know the total period of services and just what these services were. And whether he made any purchases for any officer of the companies.

IT IS NOT Shefferman, the man, but Shefferman the go-between who interests the committee and its chief counsel, Robert Kennedy. From the answers to those questionnaires will come the data to help write new laws aimed at eradicating such as Beck and Shefferman, eliminating the influence peddlers inside labor and ending the terror by goon unions which smear all labor.

With such laws will exit the shadow cabinets of a handful of labor barons — shadowy men who until the last convention of the AFL-CIO, would arrive in a labor convention city with fleets of cars and lots of cash.

They would set up gay parties in hotel suites at which an employer was permitted to shake the hand of a Beck or some other union chief just to prove that retaining the right "fixer" could get you into all the right places.

IT MIGHT even be from now on that employers will no longer take time out to go to labor conventions.

What the McClellan committee can't do for the "fixers" of the future, the Treasury Dept.'s Internal Revenue Service is working on. These Treasury units do not have the manpower to go through all local and national unions which have been scandalized.

But the service is certainly trying. The reports are that it is going over the detailed records of thousands of unions. Every expense dollar is being listed and union leaders are being asked to explain just where it went. Thus is history being made — albeit quietly.

This means a change in the daily life of the unions, for only the uninitiated are unaware that many a local, like many a business, pays cash to all sorts of people for all sorts of reasons, during strike or political campaign.

These loosely coordinated moves between two different arms of the government hit hard at the power of the racket unions. For, important as muscle is, the millions of dollars are their real source of power. Just look at what the McClellan committee has uncovered in the manipulation of the Teamsters' millions.

Now, both the committee and the Treasury Dept. are examining the books of Jim Hoffa's Central Conference of Teamsters. If Hoffa can't spend the union's funds by the thousands without reporting in detail to the government, he will lose much of his jaunty influence.

JUST RE-EXAMINE the McClellan committee records and look for a sentence or two, for example, in which a witness testified that he gave that Tennessee judge $18,500.

You'll note there that this Teamster specimen — without telling the judge — reported the payment to the Internal Revenue Service when they inquired about the figure.

This bit of testimony, undoubtedly, will not be overlooked in the future by officials who may be approached by the boys, or by thousands of honest politicians who have in the past taken campaign contributions.

The old murky order changeth. The era of the goldfish bowl approaches.

Marine Corps to Effect Active Duty Program

The two-year active duty program will be in effect throughout January, according to the Youngstown Marine Corps Recruiting Office.

Suspended in the fall, the program back in effect will permit a limited number of men to enlist in the corps reserve and to be assigned to immediate active duty.

Men enlisting under the two-year program will be processed similar to those who enlist for three and four year-hitches. Enlistees will be sworn in at Cleveland and will be sent for boot training to Parris Island, S.C.

The Marine Recruiting Office is in the Post Office Building in Youngstown. Prospective enlistees may call Youngstown RI 4-3816.

Administration May Seek Lower Farm Price Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration apparently is preparing to ask Congress to set lower minimum price support levels for all farm products now having a legal minimum of 75 per cent parity. The new minimum would be 60 per cent of parity, which is the price goal of federal farm programs. Products now having the 75 per cent minimum include the basic crops—wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts—as well as dairy products, honey, and tung nuts. Parity is a price standard declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to the costs of what they buy. Secretary of Agriculture Benson already has stated a 60 per cent minimum would be sought for the basic crops. So far, he has not publicly stated what the administration's position will be regarding the other commodities. His aides merely say the matter has been put up to the White House for a decision. But leaders of some of the big farm organizations say they have been informed by department officials that the administration will seek 60 per cent parity floors clear across the board, except in the case of those commodities which, under present law, may be supported between zero and 90 per cent. In this latter class are oats, rye, barley, sorghum grain, soybeans, flaxseed, cottonseed, dry peas, and the like.

MISSILE PROBLEMS AND THEIR MASTERY. — A major problem that faced scientists building America's successful intercontinental ballistic missiles was how to guide the missile 5,000 miles with near-pinpoint accuracy. Top section of this drawing by noted space artist Logan Reavis illustrates how a sensitive gyroscope has solved this problem. Middle drawing shows how U. S. scientists hope to escape anti-missiles by propelling missiles on "skip" course instead of straight course. Bottom picture illustrates Soviet boast that it has a nuclear bomb capable of destroying the Netherlands.

River Commission Reports Increase In Water Facilities

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Ohio River Valley Sanitation Commission reported today that water purification facilities now are in operation or under construction for 7,600,000 of the 10,000,000 urban population of the Ohio Valley. The report, issued by B. A. Poole of Indianapolis, chairman of the commission, said water treatment works to serve another 1,100,000 persons have had final plans approved for construction in the eight states covered by a water sanitation compact. The states are Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Virginia and New York. Poole's report said: "How far along we have come on pollution control is to contrast the situation today with that of nine years ago. At that time, purification facilities serving less than one out of every 100 people were in operation. The present satisfactory increase is a significant measure of accomplishment by the states... in their cooperative effort to safeguard water resources."

The report said fewer than 300 communities, most of them small towns, have not yet brought water purification plans to a stage where construction is being started. Industry has more than doubled its pollution control installations, the report said, but it pointed out that 1,431 plans still are dumping waste directly into the Ohio Valley streams.

Later a neighbor telephoned police that the man had handed him a revolver and five cartridges and asked him to keep them, explaining that he had just shot someone.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The government said today it will guarantee the security of non-Dutch businesses in Indonesia. In a nationwide radio broadcast, the Information Ministry said recent government moves to take control of Dutch-owned businesses would be restricted to the Dutch. Many Western businessmen have been fearful the government might also seize their enterprises during a 3½-week-old campaign to force most Dutch citizens out of Indonesia. The campaign was touched off by the Netherlands' refusal to hand over Dutch New Guinea to this island republic.

Barnes, in forecasting that 1958 "will be another relatively good year for business," spoke today of an anticipated pickup in housing construction and in public works spending. In a speech to a local Rotary Club, Barnes said: "We are experiencing now, and will undoubtedly see in the early months of 1958, some slackening in over-all business activity. Such readjustment or corrections are something that must be expected periodically during the long-term expansion. I do not expect that this correction phase will be one of long duration."

Veterans Guide

(By Veterans Administration)

Q — I am planning to sell my house and let the buyer take over my GI loan. I also want to apply to VA for release from liability. Our house is in my wife's and my name. Will she also be released from liability?

from liability?

A — If you are released from liability, she will be, also.
Q — I am the widow of a World War I veteran. VA is paying extra death compensation on behalf of my 17-year-old daughter. If she goes to school under the War Orphans Education program, will those payments stop? She already has finished high school and is ready for college.

A — If she enrolls in college under the War Orphans Education program, she may receive both the extra death compensation and her education allowance. However, once she reaches age 18, the death compensation payments must stop.
Q — A friend of mine, a World War II veteran, recently died of a service connected condition. Will his widow have a choice of two benefits.

obtaining death compensation payments or payments under the Survivor Benefits Act?
A — No. Since his death occurred after January 1, 1957, his widow does not have a choice. She may be eligible only for benefits under the Survivor Benefits Act. Had the death occurred before January 1, 1957, the widow would have had a choice between the two benefits.

Q — I am taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill, and my entitlement has nearly run out. Is it possible to have my entitlement extended as is the case with veterans in school?
A — No. The law prohibits the extension of entitlement for veterans taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. Your GI training will end as of the date your entitlement expires.

'Doctor to Have Final Say on Aggie Coaching Post,' States Frank Leahy

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas A&M thought it had named Frank Leahy, former coach of Notre Dame, as its head coach and athletic director but it wasn't sure today.

Leahy says his doctor will have to say so first.

President M. T. Harrington of Texas A&M released a statement that the former Notre Dame coach had agreed to a three-year contract at $16,000 a year — $1,000 more than was paid Paul Bryant, who resigned to go to Alabama — plus rent — free use of a college-owned residence. He said formal signing was expected by the end of the week, that Leahy was in a hospital at his home in Michigan City, Ind., recovering from an ankle fracture.

However, at the hospital Leahy said, "I told them it was 99 per cent definite" but that he was going to Chicago to see Dr. Cliff Barbock, who treated him for a stomach ailment three years ago. That ailment had caused him to retire from coaching in 1953 after compiling a fabulous record as head man at Notre Dame.

Leahy said he thought a final agreement wasn't supposed to be reached until Saturday.

"I wouldn't want to go to them in poor health," Leahy said. "It wouldn't be right for them or for Frank Leahy. I feel he understood that."

He said that if he does he will bring Bob McBride, his assistant coach at Notre Dame, with him. He added that the house the college would furnish him was too small for his family of eight children, five at home.

Anderson, Ashley Cooper Win Davis Cup Challenge Matches

MELBOURNE (AP)—Malcolm Anderson and Ashley Cooper, Australian's latest pair of court killers, won the opening singles matches in the Davis Cup Challenge Round today and put the American forces' backs squarely against the wall.

Anderson took a long, tense struggle from Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio, 6-3, 7-5, 3-6, 7-9, 6-3, while Cooper panted to another five-set triumph over veteran Vic Seixas, 6-4, 7-5, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3, while a capacity crowd of more than 20,000—said to be one of the largest ever to witness a tennis match—squirmed at the uncertainty of the matches.

The Aussies, latest in a long production line of tennis twins that included the likes of Frank Sedgman and Ken MacGregor and Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, had their troubles with the U. S. pair.

In fact, hardly a spectator budged from his seat on this dank, gloomy day until the final stroke was smashed.

Now the Aussies have merely to win either Friday's doubles or one of Saturday's singles to keep possession of the cup they have won for the last two years.

The order of the final singles will be the reverse of today's matches. U.S. Captain Billy Talbert said he still was undecided over the makeup of his doubles team for Friday. Ordinarily it would be Seixas and Gardner Mulloy. But after Seixas' long match against Cooper, Talbert may decide to use Mackay, who endeared himself with the Australian fans as a result of his fine match against Anderson.

At the end, the spectators, who regard the Americans almost as fondly as their own, were wildly cheering the 22-year-old Mackay, a virtual unknown here.

Seixas' defeat was a disappointment, to be sure, but Mackay's performance was a heartening sight from the U.S. viewpoint. Right down to the final point, Barry, a 6-4 graduate of the University of Michigan, fought Anderson.

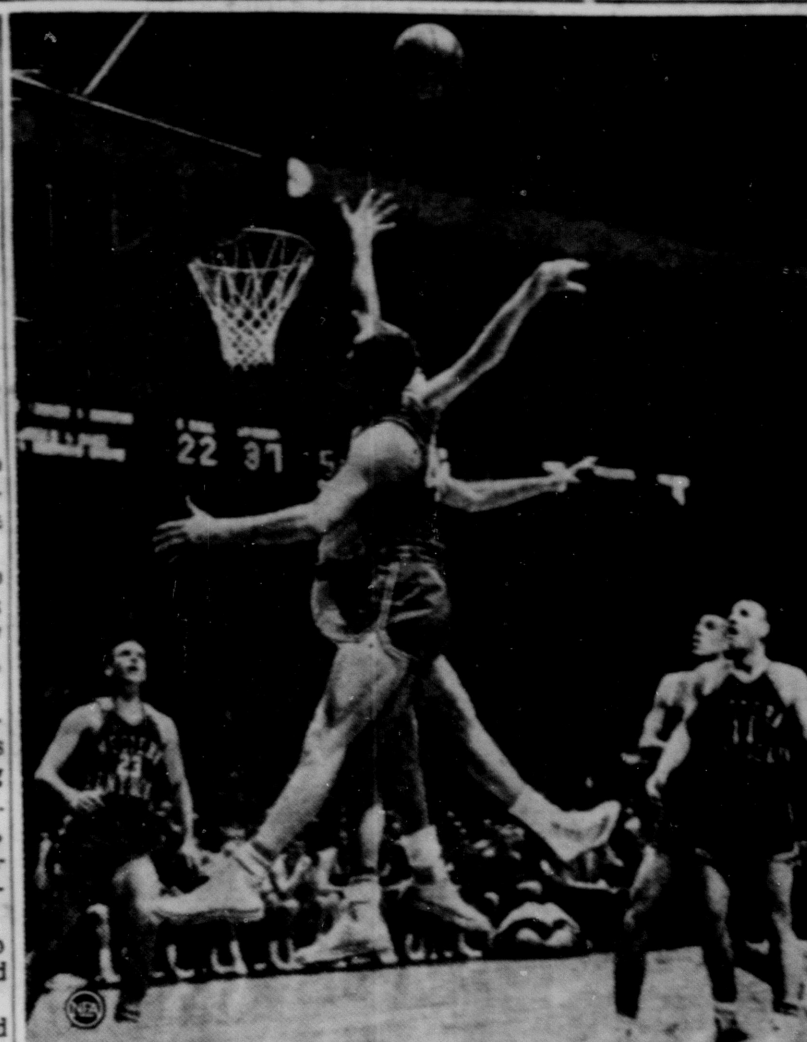

Disadvantages meant nothing to him. He came back time and again when all seemed lost.

This was the lad who never had layed on the center court in Forest Hills let alone a Davis Cup match.

Wilson Says Lions Will Be In 'Top' Shape

DETROIT (AP)—Coach George Wilson of the Detroit Lions predicted today his team, "with the exception of Bobby Layne, will be in its best over-all shape of the season" for its battle with the Cleveland Browns here Sunday for the National Football League championship.

Wilson didn't knock on wood to ward off a reversal of luck, but did take an anxious glance in the direction of Charley Ane, star of offensive tackle, hobbling about on an injured knee, and defensive halfback Jim David barking an ankle injury under a sun lamp.

Ane plodded up and down Briggs Stadium steps time and again in an effort to loosen the knee. When someone remarked there might be as much as $1,000 difference in a winner's and a loser's share of the player pool, Ane was quick with the response: "There's a lot more than that at stake. I think I'll make it."

David said he'd play, "even if I have to get the doc to give me a couple of shots in the heel."

In regular season play Cleveland won nine games, lost two and tied one. Detroit was 8-4, then beat San Francisco in a playoff for the Western Division crown a week ago.

Detroit and Cleveland split a pair of pre-season games, the Lions winning 20-10 in Detroit and the Browns 23-7 in Cleveland.

What's left of Briggs Stadium's 2,555 seats and 4,000 standing room tickets will go on public sale Friday.

Box-office treasurer Maurice Schubert estimated fewer than one per cent of season ticket holders would fail to claim championship seats and that the game would be a sellout.

North Scores 23-20 Victory Over South

Dave Kaiser Kicks 36-Yard Field Goal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A crackling duel between passer Jim Ninowski and runner Dick Christy highlighted the Shrine's Christmas night North-South college all-star football game. But it was a 36-yard field goal by Dave Kaiser that produced the North's 23-20 victory.

Kaiser is the same Michigan State end who booted a three-pointer that gave the Spartans a 17-14 triumph over UCLA in the 1956 Rose Bowl game.

Ninowski, Michigan State quarterback, turned in a record passing performance for this charity game by completing 13 of 33 throws for 295 yards and a touchdown. Michigan State end Bob Jewett hauled in eight aerials for 201 yards and a score.

Christy's running — he scored twice and raced 70 yards from scrimmage and 99 more with punts — brought even more cheers from the crowd of 28,303 than Ninowski's passes. The All America halfback from North Carolina State was the key man in a whirlwind rally that almost turned defeat into victory for the Rebels.

After Kaiser's field goal late in the third period put the North ahead 23-13, Christy, who scored earlier on a 62-yard run from scrimmage, flashed down the sideline with a punt 52 yards for another touchdown.

Then, with about two minutes left, he scooted 47 yards to the North 33 with another punt. After an exchange of fumbles, he snared a 23-yard pass from Arkansas' George Walker at the 2. Powerful Jimmy Taylor, Louisiana State fullback, could get only one yard and the final whistle blew before the South could run another play.

Quarterback Bob Schwarze of The Citadel lateraled to Florida's score of the night.

Michigan's Jim Van Pelt hit Kaiser in the end zone with a 12-yarder, tying the score.

In the second quarter, Illinois halfback Dale Smith broke two tackles after catching a short toss from Ninowski. The South knotted it at 13-13 on Christy's 62-yard blast.

Notre Dame's Dick Lynch ran back the ensuing kickoff 72 yards to the South 28 and five plays later Ed Coffin of Syracuse blasted the final five yards. Kaiser completed the North scoring.

It was the North's third victory in the series against six for the South.

Aggies Arrive For Gator Bowl Game

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Texas A&M football team arrives this afternoon for its Gator Bowl game with Tennessee Saturday and observers will be watching to see if the Aggies are ready for coach Paul (Bear) Bryant in his final game before moving to his alma mater, Alabama.

Opinion here is divided over whether the Aggies will be eager to give Bryant a royal sendoff with a bowl victory or whether they will be lackadaisical through a feeling he let them down by switching coaching jobs.

Texas A&M is a senior team that twice ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll before losing the final games 7-6 to Rice and 9-7 to Texas. In the final poll A&M was ninth.

It is loaded with talent and has a particularly brilliant star in halfback John Crow. All America and winner of the Heisman Trophy for the outstanding college football player of the season.

The Aggies are favored by a touchdown over Tennessee, but they had better be at their best if they want to prove they are better than the Vols.

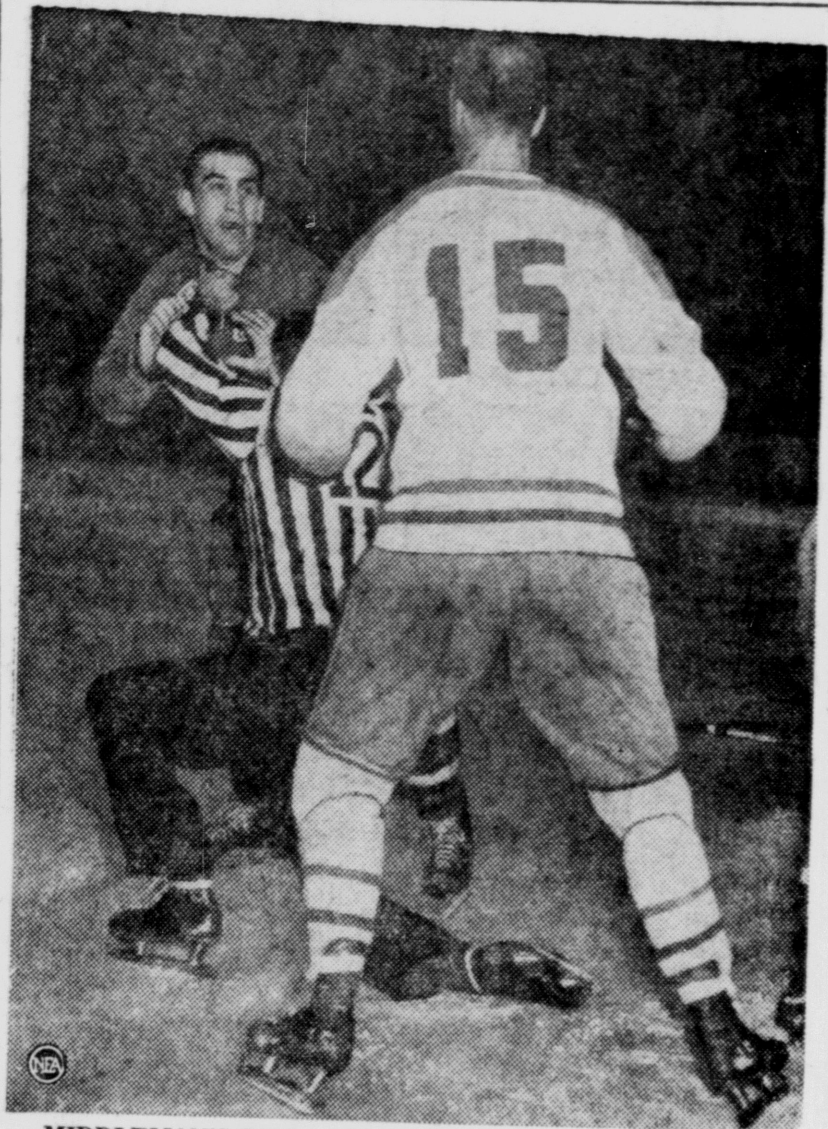

Coach Bowden Wyatt's squad is working with a determination which seems likely to put the Vols at a peak Saturday.

Lakers Beat Pistons 106-104; Warriors Drop Celts 115-105

By The Associated Press

'Twas the night of Christmas and all through the National Basketball Assn. the underdogs were stirring around abet with a belated Christmas present for their long suffering fans.

The Minneapolis Lakers, the doormats of the league so far this year, knocked off the Detroit Pistons 106-104 for their seventh win in 28 starts, while the Philadelphia Warriors beat the Boston Celtics for the first time this year 115-105.

In the other scheduled game the Syracuse Nats defeated the New York Knicks 134-130 in overtime at Syracuse.

The Lakers withstood a fourth quarter drive by the Pistons, being outscored 28-16 during this time, to gain their triumph. Harry Gallatin's basket with 25 seconds put the clincher on for the winners.

Larry Foust led the Lakers with 24 points, while George Yardley took game honors with 29 points for the Pistons, who now have lost nine games in 13 home starts.

The Warriors gave Boston a taste of its own medicine ripping through them for a 30-12 quarter lead and a 58-54 halftime lead. The Warriors led by as much as 25 points in the second quarter.

Paul Arizin, who scored 21 points the first half, wound up with 35 for the night to top all scorers. Neil Johnson had 25 for Philadelphia, while Bill Sharman paced the Celts with 24. This was only the fifth loss in 33 games for the Celtics.

Schayes and Ray Felix of the Knicks each had 33 points with Schayes getting 25 in the second half. Larry Costello had 28 for the Nats.

San Francisco Top-Seeded In Tourney at Oklahoma City

By The Associated Press

College basketball's holiday tournaments start rolling in earnest today with six major classics opening play.

Four of the nation's top 10 teams in the weekly Associated Press poll will be bidding to add to their stature.

Kansas, No. 2, and Kansas State No. 3, are entered in the Big Eight Tournament at Kansas City. Fourth-ranked North Carolina is favored to retain its title in the Dixie Classic at Raleigh. San Francisco, No. 7, is top-seeded in Oklahoma City.

Other major tourneys scheduled to open today include the ECAC Holiday Festival at New York, the Southwest Conference preseason tournament at Houston and the Louisiana Invitational at Shreveport.

Kansas and seven-foot Wilt Chamberlain are favored to defend their Big Eight laurels, with Kansas State, sparked by Bob and Jack Parr, expected to furnish the chief opposition.

In the Dixie Classic, North Carolina's champions are anxious to embark on a new winning streak. The Tar Heels saw their 37 game victory skein snapped by West Virginia last week. N. C. State, No. 13 nationally and a six-time Classic winner, and Duquesne, Steel Bowl victors, are the dark horses.

San Francisco, which won the All-College in 1954, is the team to beat in the oldest of holiday tournaments.

Fifteenth-ranked Seattle, last year's all-college winner, and featuring Elgin Baylor, rules the favorite in the well-matched ECAC championship while Temple, third in the NIT last season, boasts a veteran team headed by Guy Rodgers.

The Southwest Conference shapes up as a wide-open scramble. Led by 6-10 Temple Tucker, Rice had rated the loop's strongest team, but the Owls have lost three straight on the road. Texas Tech still is undefeated. SMU won the tourney last season and TCU has been a surprise.

Louisiana Tech has been established a slight choice to win the Louisiana Invitational.

It would be interesting to know the exact number of deer taken in this county during the 1957 season. I would like to urge all deer hunters to mail in their cards regarding their hunting success no matter if a deer was taken or not.

Trumbull County claims a kill of 150 deer according to some local sports writers. This could be correct to a certain extent. It could be correct in that some 150 deer kill reports came to their attention, not to mention duplicates and then final tabulations.

Boston Gives 4-1 Defeat To Detroit

By The Associated Press

There seems to be a lot of jam developing around the middle of standings.

The Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings are having a battle-royal for possession of third place. Boston took over third Wednesday night by defeating Detroit 4-1 and Toronto moved into fourth position with a 5-4 victory over the League-leading Montreal Canadiens.

In the remaining game, the runners-up New York Rangers missed a golden opportunity to gain ground on first place by bowing to the tailend Chicago Blackhawks 3-1.

The Bruins, who were tied for third with the Red Wings before Wednesday night, have 32 points. The Maple Leafs have 31 and fifth-place Detroit 30. The Rangers, with 39 points, still trail Montreal by four.

Boston snapped a six-game winless streak and also broke the Red Wings' three-game victory skein.

The victory was Chicago's first in seven games and snapped a New York six-game winning streak.

It also was the Rangers' first Christmas night setback on home ice since 1928.

Navy Expecting Stiff Fight in Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — Navy's football team comes to town today looking for a fight and expecting to get a stiff one just seven days hence when the Rice Owls face the Middles in the Cotton Bowl.

Football fever started rising as Navy, making its first appearance in Dallas' post-season classic, hove into sight.

Rice, meanwhile, was in Abilene, Tex., where the Owls had a successful training period before they played in the 1954 Cotton Bowl. Coach Jess Neely got his boys out of Houston because a big basketball tournament is going on there, with all the Southwest Conference teams competing.

Navy's magnificent Midshipmen, who will rate as favorites in the Cotton Bowl, will get Dallas' official welcome in a ceremony Friday morning at the high school stadium. Rice won't arrive until Monday for the usual speeches of welcome and the distribution of the traditional Texas hats.

Ohio State, Oregon Return To Workouts

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — It was back to the practice grind today for Ohio State and Oregon, with their climactic Rose Bowl football clash less than a week away.

Christmas thoughts were shoved aside as both teams donned their cleats and resumed workouts for the New Years Day classic.

Although both teams were far from home, and spent Christmas under a blazing sun which sent temperatures soaring into the high 70s, the holiday was memorable. Santa Claus remembered everyone.

The Bucks, basking in the role of 19-point favorites over the Pacific Coast co-champions, had their big yuletide party Christmas Eve. Ernie Godfrey, Ohio's veteran freshman mentor who has been on the staff since 1929, played St. Nick and passed out 34 presents to each player.

The Webfoots, awed not in the least by the underdog tag pinned on them by the odds-fellows, waited until Christmas afternoon for their gift exchange, then joined the Bucks for a Rose Bowl committee party Wednesday night.

No Christmas practices were held.

With the exception of Ohio State's Don Clark and Jerry Ballinger, both left halfbacks, the cripples on both squads were rounding into shape. Clark, leading ground-gainer for the Big Ten champs, probably will miss the big game because of a late-season groin injury, and Ballinger is definitely benched with a broken right hand suffered this week in practice.

Harry Mondale, Oregon's stubby 196-pound guard who stands only five feet six, is practically recovered from an influenza attack and will be ready to go. Kenneth (Tug) Wilson, Western Conference commissioner who has been abed for several days with the same ailment, was expected to be up and about by the weekend as he continued to improve.

N. Carolina Favored In Basketball Classic

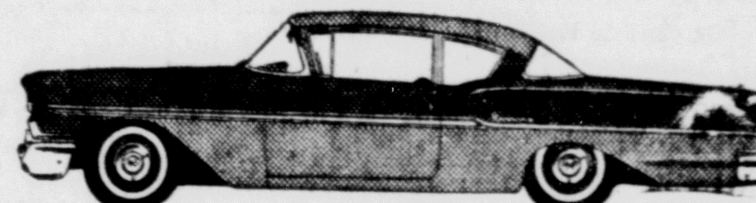

RALEIGH (AP) — The ninth annual Dixie basketball classic got under way today with defending champion North Carolina the favorite and chief first round attention focused on the Northwestern-North Carolina State game.

The big holiday attraction matches four Midwestern and Eastern teams against North Carolina's "Big Four" colleges which include North Carolina State, the University of North Carolina, Duke and Wake Forest. Near-capacity crowds are expected for the three-day tournament in Reynolds Coliseum.

Wake Forest (2-5) was scheduled to meet Duquesne (3-2) in the opening game at 2 p. m. Other first round matches: N. C. State (6-1) vs. Northwestern (3-1), North Carolina (5-1) vs. St. Louis (2-1) and Duke (2-3) vs. Seton Hall.

N. C. State, winner of six classic titles, and Northwestern are dark horse teams. State's Wolfpack, a tough team to beat in the Coliseum, has lost only to Clemson. Northwestern extended Kansas before bowing 71-65 in its only loss.

SPACE DOG: Laika sits placidly in compartment of Sputnik II, awaiting role as first space traveler. She died in space.

Little Rock Episode Ranks Second

By JOE WING
General Editor, AP Newsfeatures

Two metal moons lobbed into outer space by Russia made the biggest news of 1957. Their breaking of the gravity barrier has been adjudged the year's outstanding event by the nation's top news editors in The Associated Press' annual poll.

The Russian achievement has had broad consequences. While the United States insisted it wasn't racing satellites, the launching program quickly proved a propaganda victory for Russia. It was even likened here to a second Pearl Harbor.

Soon President Eisenhower assured America it was still ahead in over-all military strength, appointing a science coordinator, and gave priority to the whole missile program. As the realization sank home that the beep-beep from space symbolized vast technical developments in Russia, there was soul searching by Americans on their educational and military setups.

When Sputnik II stole a second march on the world, however, the Russians themselves were surprised because the Western man-on-the-street turned his attention largely to the doomed dog that traveled the silent skies to a lone some death within the half-ton satellite.

A close second on the editors' list of biggest news events was the Little Rock Story.

Although a large number of schools were desegregated in the South last fall in line with the Supreme Court decision, troubles in a few spots, and in Little Rock most of all, cornered national interest.

National Guard Called

men around Central High School evasion, he left the hearings re-to "Maintain order," after a federal court ordered all persons to refrain from interference with proposed integration of the school. The guardsmen turned away nine Negroes scheduled to enter the school but were withdrawn after three weeks under court order. When the nine did enter school a riot occurred despite police efforts.

Then federal troops were rushed in by presidential order. While this move insured places for the nine students in the erstwhile white school, it also spread bitterness through the South and stirred up political currents yet to be measured. "We are an occupied territory," asserted Faubus.

The third big story was the swift rise of Nikita Khrushchev to supremacy if uneasy authority in Russia. Outpacing even Stalin in his prime, Khrushchev first outmaneuvered a cabal in the central committee and banished such veteran Kremlin hands as V. M. Molotov and Georgi M. Malenkov from the party's ruling Presidium. Then only three months later, he handed walking papers to no less a national hero than Georgi Zhukov, the defense minister, who had backed him in the previous crisis. The charge: Zhukov was seeking personal power.

Dave Beck and James R. Hoffa of the 1,300,000-man Teamsters' Union started in the congressional hearings on rackets that placed fourth among the year's top news events.

In two days Beck, the union president, invoked the Fifth Amendment more than 200 times under questioning on assertions of irregularities, including one that he took more than $300,000 in teamster funds.

Under indictment for income tax

men around Central High School evasion, he left the hearings re-to "Maintain order," after a federal court ordered all persons to refrain from interference with proposed integration of the school. The guardsmen turned away nine Negroes scheduled to enter the school but were withdrawn after three weeks under court order. When the nine did enter school a riot occurred despite police efforts.

As an aftermath, the Teamsters Union was expelled in December from the AFL-CIO organization. Fifth among the big stories on the editors' list was the boiling Middle East that generated another major crisis when Russia expanded its influence into Syria. Suddenly, this fall, Syria was holding her that Turkey and America were about to attack her. Russia were about to attack her. Russia idly by in any such event.

America was warning right back against Russian intervention. There were appeals to the United Nations, a U.S. airlift of tanks to Jordan, Turkish maneuvering to Syria. And then Khrushchev barged into a Turkish diplomatic party and said, in effect, to forget it, there would be no war.

Other top stories, in the order the news editors placed them:

Audrey Devastating
Hurricane Audrey. Most devastating since the northeastern storm of 1938, its tidal wave swamped the southeastern corner of Louisiana. Dead and missing numbered 539, property loss 40 million dollars.

The President's mild stroke. This story broke after some ballots were in the mail and most editors had to assess it while it developed. The story caused didos in the stock market, as was the case in previous presidential illnesses in 1956 and 1955, and smoked up once more the issue of establishing succession procedure for an ailing president in case of necessity.

The Asian flu. An epidemic that swept out of Hong Kong to envelope the Far East and then America was notable for its low death rate, its 12 million U.S. victims and the fact that a vaccine was developed and manufactured in a matter of months to help keep it under control. Still unanswered: whether it would return later in more virulent form.

The Girard case. A young Illinois soldier in Japan, William S. Girard, shot and killed a Japanese woman on a target range and became an international issue. America won good will by turning him over to a Japanese court which convicted him of manslaughter and gave him a suspended sentence.

Civil rights bill. The first civil rights bill passed by the U.S. Senate in 82 years, a comparatively mild measure, was enacted despite a one-man filibuster by Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who dragged out the fight against the wishes of his Southern colleagues.

Khrushchev Is 'Man of Year'

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

Nikita S. Khrushchev, the now grim, now amiable, now reckless peasant who appears to have carved his way to the top spot in the Communist world, has claimed another distinction.

He is the first leader of an Iron Curtain country to be named Man of the Year in the annual Associated Press poll of newspaper, radio and television editors.

The editors, reflecting the cone of the West over Khrushchev's rise to power, gave the burly, balding Kremlin leader nearly 100 times as many votes as his nearest rival, President Eisenhower.

EISENHOWER was the winner in four of the last five years.

The Russian party boss attained preeminence in the Red world by apparently winning the long post-Stalin intraparty struggle for Russian power.

Chief concern for the West is Khrushchev's unstable personality. He can tell jokes or make threats, with or without a vodka glass in his hand.

Some have expressed fears that the emergence of Khrushchev as top dog in the Kremlin is the greatest threat to world peace since Adolf Hitler ruled Germany.

THE AP EDITORS also named Khrushchev man of the year in New York's Madison Square Garden, the first time that any person has swept two categories in the year-ending survey, the top man in religion for the fourth straight year.

Braun, the acknowledged leader of American space thought, was the editors' big man in science, despite the fact that the United States trails the Communists in space progress.

The Russian scientists who successfully launched the two earth satellites that dealt a tremendous propaganda blow to Western science trailed von Braun by only a handful of votes.

George Meany, the embattled president of the AFL-CIO, was named man of the year in labor for his fight against union corruption.

Teamster Union President-elect James Hoffa and retiring President Dave Beck, both rocked by charges of corruption, were a close second and third respectively.

FOR THE SEVENTH time since the poll was started, Henry Ford II, chief of the automobile company that bears his family name, was chosen man of the year in the industrial field.

Neil MacElroy, the Proctor & Gamble head who became secretary of defense, was a distant second to Ford.

Another man who maintained domination in his field was evangelist Billy Graham.

His crusade for souls in New York's Madison Square Garden, which provided headlines through a world of evil.

most of the summer, made him the top man in religion for the fourth straight year.

IN THE LIGHTER FIELDS of sports, literature and entertainment, last year's winners were overthrown by wide margins.

Lew Burdette of the Milwaukee Braves, the first pitcher in 37 years to start and win three World Series games, was handily the sportsman of the year.

It was the third year in a row that World Series heroes caught the editors' eyes. Don Larsen of the New York Yankees and Johnny Podres of the Brooklyn Dodgers won in '56 and '55 respectively.

A good distance behind Burdette was Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox' hardy perennial, who became the oldest man ever to win a major league batting title at the ripe baseball age of 38.

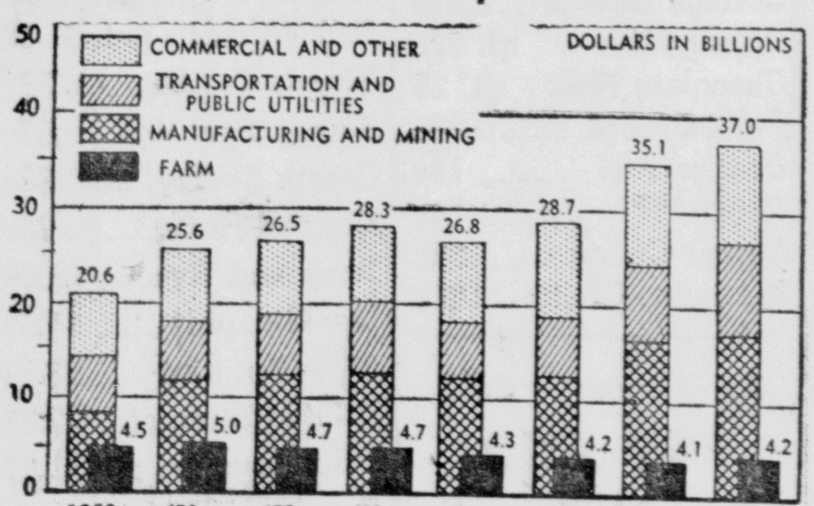

A NEW FIGURE of some controversy supplanted Elvis Presley as the top choice in entertainment — movie producer Mike Todd.

Todd's production "Around the World in 80 Days" was the top movie drawing card and his two lavish parties, one in London, the other in New York, caught world attention.

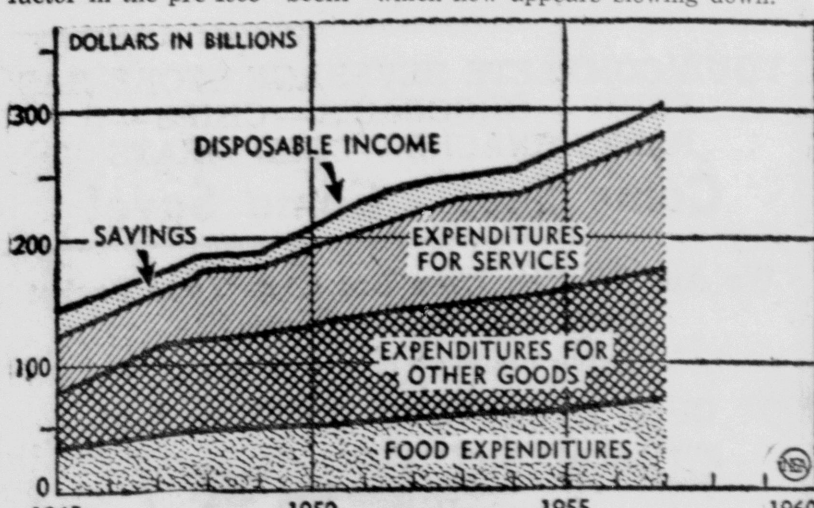

James Gould Cozzens won the plaudits in the field of literature for his best-selling "By Love Possessed," a sensitive novel of an ethical man trying to do good in a world of evil.

Charting Growth of Nation's Economy

Slowdown, Then Pickup in '58

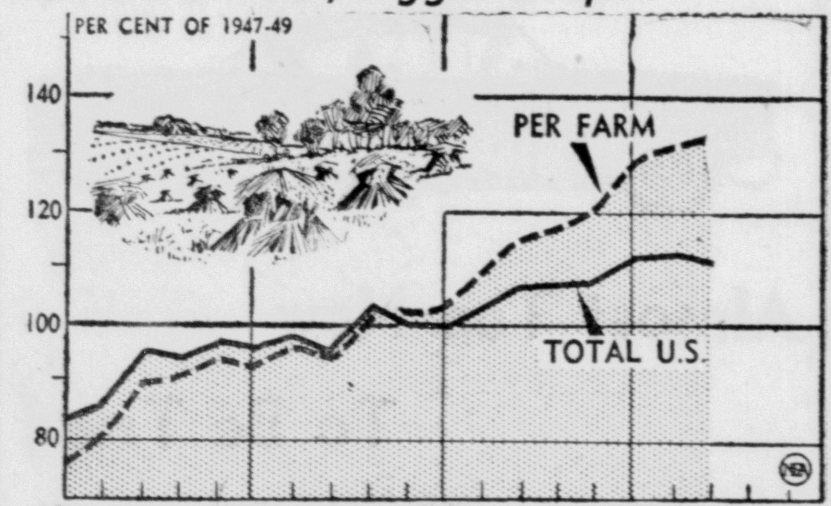

LEVELING OFF IN '58 — High capital expenditures by business, increasing during the past three years, leveled off toward the end of 1957, with indications of a reduction in 1958. Business spending for expansion of plant and equipment and for inventories was a major factor in the pre-1958 "boom" which now appears slowing down.

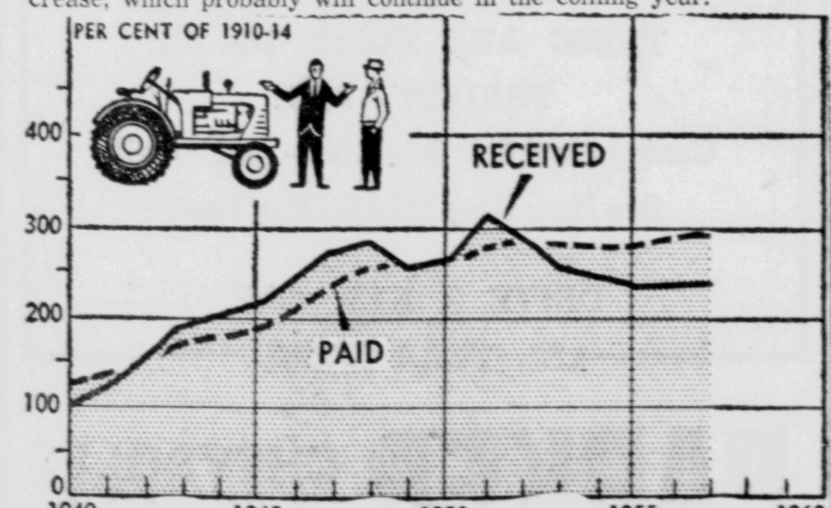

SPENDING RISES IN '57 — The lines showing disposable income and expenditures ran almost parallel during 1957, indicating the rate of spending just about kept pace with the rate of income increase. Americans spent about a fourth of their income for food, much of it for higher cost of services connected with food.

Fewer Farmers, Bigger Crops

FARM OUTPUT RISES — Despite a steady drop in the number of farm workers, the output per farm has maintained a steady rise since 1950. The 1957 rate was 133 against the 1947-49 index of 100. Better farming machinery and methods are responsible for the increase, which probably will continue in the coming year.

FARMERS HAVE RECORD COSTS — Farm production costs averaged 4 per cent higher in 1957 than in 1956. The farmer paid more in taxes, wages, interest and for machinery, equipment, and about everything except fertilizer. The farmer received about 3 per cent more for his products, so cost-price gap remained about same.

Jury Hears Arguments On Penalty For Scott

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Superior Court jury that convicted L. Ewing Scott of murdering his missing wife today hears arguments on whether he should die in the gas chamber or be sentenced to life in prison.

Scott, 61, was found guilty last Saturday of first degree murder after an 11-week trial. The body of his wealthy wife, Evelyn Throsby Scott, was never found. She was 63 when she disappeared from her Bel-Air mansion May 16, 1955.

Under a new California law, the jury of seven men and five women will decide the penalty for Scott, who fled to Canada nearly a year after his wife's disappearance and was arrested last April at the Canadian border near Detroit.

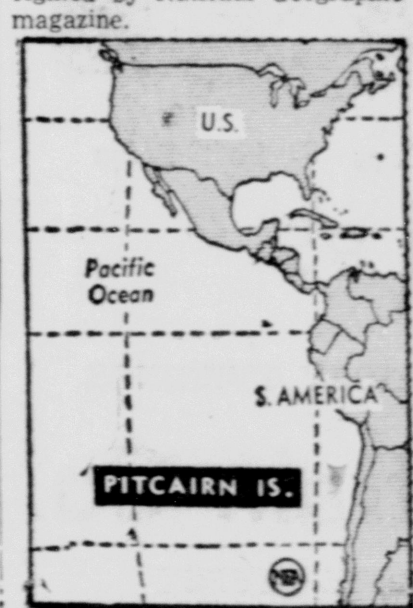

The state and defense could offer testimony, at the penalty hearing, bearing on aggravating or mitigating circumstances of the crime but neither indicated such intention.

Mother Finds Day-Old Baby Has Two Teeth

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mrs. Walter Dorman looked again Christmas Day and found that her 6-pound 13-ounce son, Christopher, born Christmas Eve had two front teeth. She said it was nothing new to her since her four-year-old, William, had two teeth in exactly the same position when he was born.

Bounty Is Bonanza Find for Photographer—

FINDING of the coral-encrusted hulk of the notorious mutiny ship HMS Bounty by veteran undersea photographer Luis Marden adds an exciting epilogue to one of the great sagas of the sea. Ship was found where she was scuttled in Bounty Bay off Pitcairn Island in the Pacific in 1790, to conceal hiding place of the mutineers. At right, Marden is shown on the ocean floor, examining some of the ship's copper fittings. He was assisted in his search by Tom Christian, 21-year-old great-great-grandson of Fletcher Christian, leader of the Bounty mutineers. Photo copyrighted by National Geographic magazine.

Make Kissing Ball New Year's

How about a kiss-and-tell supper on New Year's Eve? You can make a Kissing Ball for your buffet table and then tell your guests how you prepared the utterly delicious main dish by typing out the recipe as a New Year's gift. Have copies for the men, too — some of them are bound to be amateur chefs and will be both flattered and interested.

The beef-and-mushroom main dish may be prepared ahead and reheated shortly before the midnight supper. To accompany it, cook converted type rice ahead; when you are ready to serve, cover it with boiling water, allow it to stand about five minutes, then drain.

Add a salad of endive, other crisp greens and black olives. You can arrange these ingredients attractively in your salad bowl, cover tightly and refrigerate. Just before serving, toss the salad with a dressing of olive oil, white wine vinegar prepared Bahama type mustard, salt and freshly ground pepper. Cheese sticks can accompany the beef and salad. For dessert you need nothing more than holiday cookies and cake and lots of good strong coffee.

To make the Kissing Ball, you'll need a package of 9-inch silver-finished service plates, a stamper, paste, a package of fameproof confetti, narrow ribbon and artificial or real mistletoe. Bend each of the six plates in half, inside in; arrange plates back to back to form a ball with folded edges toward center, staple the plate edges together at top and bottom close to folds. Brush edges of plates with paste and while still damp, sprinkle with confetti; press confetti down slightly and shake off excess. Tie ribbon bows and sprigs of mistletoe at center edges of plates and a ribbon loop at the top for hanging.

Leftover Meats Have Many Uses

What can you do with ham or turkey left over from the big holiday feasts? Answer: enjoy it. Here's how:

Hot Ham Salad

One-third cup roasted unblanched almonds, 1 egg yolk, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/4 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon cornstarch, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, few grains pepper, 1/2 teaspoon grated onion, 1 cup diced cooked ham, 1 cup thinly sliced celery, 2 hard-cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon diced pimiento, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Chop almonds. Beat egg yolk slightly. Add vinegar, water, cornstarch, salt, mustard, and pepper, and cook and stir over hot water until thickened. (It will not be quite as thick as mayonnaise). Add onion, ham, celery, diced eggs, pimiento and parsley. Blend lightly and heat thoroughly. Just before serving, stir in almonds. Serve on hot cooked rice.

Chinese Turkey

One-quarter cup finely diced onion, 3 tablespoons cooking oil, 2 cups diagonally sliced celery, 2-3 cup well-seasoned chicken broth, 1 cup green peas, fresh or frozen; 6-ounce can sliced broiled mushrooms, 2 cups thinly sliced cooked turkey, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-3 cup cold water, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 2 tablespoons sherry or 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Saute onion in oil in skillet or Dutch oven over moderate heat about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add celery and chicken broth. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Remove cover and add peas and contents of can of mushrooms. Lay pieces of turkey over top. Cover tightly and continue cooking another 10 minutes or until vegetables are barely tender. Blend together and add cornstarch, water, kitchen bouquet, ginger and sherry or lemon juice. Add turkey and cook, stirring constantly until the sauce thickens and comes to boil. Serve immediately with hot cooked rice.

APPLE CAKE GLAZYS

Ingredients: 1 cup sifted flour, 1 1/2 teaspoon double acting baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1 egg, 1/4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine (melted), 4 to 6 medium sized apples, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.

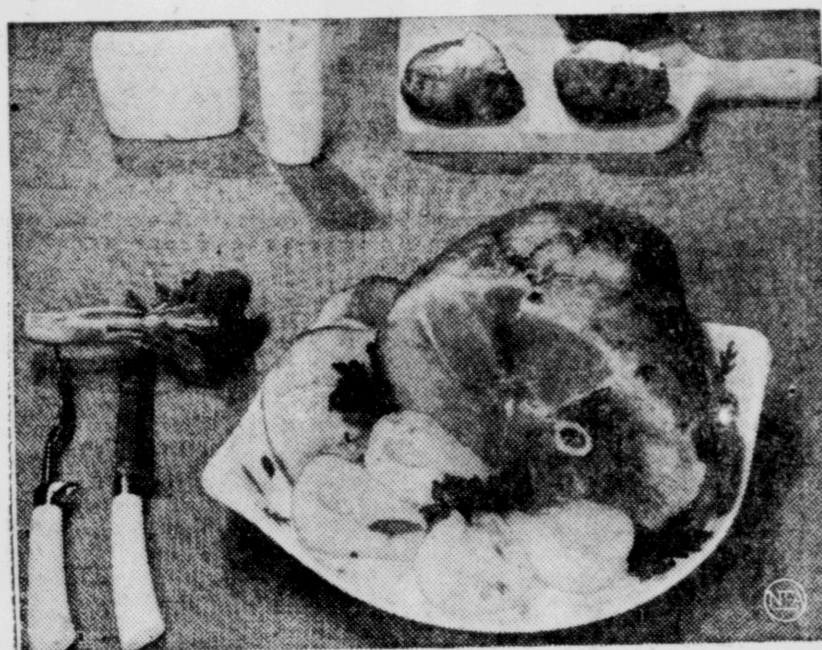

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Cut in shortening until particles are fine. Beat egg enough to combine yolk and white; add milk and lemon rind; beat enough to mix. Stir into sifted dry ingredients. Press into bottom of a buttered baking pan (8 by 8 by 2 inches); brush with 1 tablespoon of the melted butter. Cover and refrigerate. Pare and core apples; cut each into eighths. Arrange apple slices in rows over dough. Mix remaining 1 tablespoon butter with 4 tablespoons sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over apples. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until apples are tender — about 35 minutes. Serve warm.

Spice These Pear Halves

With your party-baked ham, or if you broil or fry it, serve "hot and cool" horseradish pears. Certainly that's a new taste idea. It comes from the Pacific coast, the source of many of our fine canned Bartlett pears. They are delicious, as you know, in desserts, salads and with meats, or chilled and served direct from the can.

Horseradish Pears

One No. 2 1/2 can Bartlett pear halves, juice from pears, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 teaspoons horseradish.

Drain pear halves. Combine pear juice, vinegar, and horseradish and pour over pears in deep bowl or quart jar so as to completely cover pears. Let stand overnight "new day" salad.

Horseradish-Cottage Cheese Salad

One tablespoon unflavored gelatin, 1/2 cup cold water, sauce from horseradish pears (about 1 1/2 cups), 2 cups cottage cheese (1 pint), 1/4 cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, few grains salt. Soften gelatin in cold water. He sauce to boiling point and dissolve gelatin in it. Cool slightly and stir in cottage cheese, chopped celery, pimiento and salt. Chill until firm, stirring occasionally to keep ingredients well distributed. Serve as a salad with the meal featuring horseradish pears, or as a "new day" salad.

Spice and Store Oranges

If a basket of citrus fruit was among your gifts, you might like to put up some spiced oranges to serve after the holidays. We snacking.

Spiced Oranges

Ingredients: 6 oranges; 1 1/2 qts. water, 3 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 1/4 cup cider vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon whole cloves, three 3-inch sticks cinnamon, 3 pieces whole ginger.

Method: Put whole oranges in large saucepan; add 1 1/2 quarts water. Bring to a boil; boil 20 minutes. Drain and cut into eighths; remove any seeds. Mix sugar, 2 cups water, vinegar, cinnamon, cloves and ginger; stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil; add oranges and simmer about 20 minutes. Spoon into hot sterilized jars and seal, or cover and store in refrigerator. Serve as a relish. Makes 7 cups — 48 slices plus syrup.

Orange bread

Ingredients: 1/4 cup slivered orange rind (about 4 oranges), 1 1/4 cups sugar, 1-3 cup water, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1-3 cups orange juice, 3 eggs (well beaten), 4 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 2 teaspoons salt.

Method: To prepare the slivered orange rind, wash the oranges and dry; remove the orange rind with a sharp knife, cutting around the orange and leaving most of the white membrane behind. Cut rind into very thin slivers with scissors or knife. Mix sugar and water; add rind; stir constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved; cook slowly about 5 minutes. The rind and syrup should measure 1 1-3 cups. Add butter; stir until melted; add orange juice and beaten eggs. Sift together in a large mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add orange mixture; stir just enough to moisten dry ingredients. Batter should be lumpy. Bake in greased and paper-lined loaf pan (9 by 5 by 3 inches) in slow oven (325 degrees) 1 hour and 15 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Turn out on rack; remove paper; cool. Store in tightly covered container.

Two Girls Apparently Die of Suffocation

MONCLAIR, N. J. (AP)—William Walsh entered his children's bedroom Christmas morning to find two of his little girls dead.

Police said Jill Ann, 2, and Judy Lynn, 9 months, had apparently suffocated during the night when a radiator valve blew off, filling the room with steam.

A third child, Cindy, 3, escaped the same fate when she was earlier taken into her parents' bed.

Rickets Disease

Mrs. R. asks what might cause against in infants and the very a caving in of one side of the young. It is a vitamin deficiency chest in an eight-year-old boy. Probably the most likely explanation is a disease known as rickets, which causes the bones to become soft and consequently leads to deformities such as that mentioned, to bow-legs, and to other changes in the bony structures. Rickets is primarily a disorder of children and should be guarded

Probably the first one to describe rickets was an Englishman named Daniel Whistler (not to be confused with the painter), born in 1619. Whistler described the knobby swellings which grow on the chest.

The whole bony system is flexible, he said, and the bones can be twisted more or less like wax. Muscles become flabby and the bones can scarcely hold the weight of the body.

He also mentioned the narrowing of the chest and the prominence of the breast bone and pointed out the unfortunate effect of rickets on the teeth.

Of course, neither Whistler, nor another Englishman named Francis Glisson, who also studied the disease, knew what caused it or how to prevent it. Now, however, we are much better prepared, and there is little need for anyone, who takes reasonable care, to develop rickets.

The action of the sunlight on the skin is the best source of rickets preventing vitamin D. However, not all of us can seek climates where the sun is adequate in winter months.

Consequently, the next best sources of vitamin D and certain liver oils which contain this vitamin in large quantities.

The liver of cod fish and of the halibut are particularly useful, and can provide the needed vitamin D. During the long winter months, therefore, vitamin D in the form of fish liver oils will provide growing children, especially, just what is necessary to prevent rickets.

Church Class To Hold Party Monday Night

ELLSWORTH — The annual Holiday party for the Fellowship Class of the Presbyterian Church will be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Schaeffer Monday evening at 8. Mrs. Leonard Goodman is co-hostess.

Mrs. Helen Brown and Mrs. Hugh Bowman will have the program and there will be an exchange of gifts.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held its monthly meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Virginia Allen. Mrs. Merle Hanna conducted a program on the subject "Problems in the Middle East." All members present gave interesting contributions to the program.

MR. AND MRS. FRANKLIN Burgoyne who recently moved to Alliquippa, Pa., spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Frank Burgoyne north of Ellsworth.

Friends in Ellsworth were sorry to hear of the sudden death of William Pine of Columbiana. Pine was part owner and manager of the Idle Acres truck stop near Ellsworth for several years and was well-known here.

Mrs. D. K. Hogg, who has been in the South Side Hospital in Youngstown for surgery, has returned to her home at Diehl Lake south of Ellsworth.

The program presented Sunday evening in the Presbyterian Church by Rev. Emory Lowe and the church choir was well attended by members of the community and many friends from the Concord Church.

National Death Rate Rises Slightly in '57

NEW YORK (AP)—Statistics compiled by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. revealed today that the national death rate rose slightly in 1957.

The death rate figure was estimated at 9.6 per 1,000 population. The rate in 1956 was 9.4 per 1,000.

The insurance company said the death rate rise reflects largely the widespread outbreak of Asian flu over the past six months.

National health survey reports show that since September, about half the population has been laid up for at least one day by acute upper respiratory diseases, including Asian flu.

Although the rate of fatalities directly from these diseases has been low, the survey said, the death rate from influenza and pneumonia increased in 1957 to 34 per 100,000.

This is the highest rate in the past decade.

Thieves Had to Work Hard to Secure Loot

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Thieves had to work hard for their loot at the Colfax Packing Co. Police said Wednesday night the burglars had to scale a fence, climb through a boiler room window, remove a metal duct from an adjoining office and climb through a 14-inch opening.

Watery Wilderness

By HAL BOYLE

EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP)—Some men find life by trying to run away from it.

That is true of Bud Kirk, the barefoot scholar of the Everglades.

Bud is a brawny 46-year-old commercial fisherman who goes around without shoes and has feet so tough he can strike a match on them or walk across broken glass without injury.

"I like the feel of the ground," said Bud. "I bought a new pair of shoes when I got married, and when I gave them away 10 years later they were still as good as new."

He doesn't mind that strangers consider it a bit odd for a man his age to go around shoeless. All his life Kirk has worried little about the opinions of others.

Bud went only to the eighth grade in school. In 1930, when he was 19, he wearied of trying to find factory work. He left his native Rochester, N.Y., and came here to one of America's last wild places.

"I was a little sour on things," said Bud.

So he plunged alone into the heart of the Everglades, and lived there alone for more than four years.

"I learned to live off the land—a thing any man can do if he is put to it," he said.

Bud emerged from time to time only to sell the skins of coon and alligators he trapped. As the years passed, Bud's anger against civilization ebbed.

In 1940 he met and married Kappy Stephens, a local school teacher. Six years ago at the age of 40 he decided he could do with a bit more schooling, so he spent a year as a special student at the University of Miami. He supported his wife and two children, meanwhile, by the sale of wild orchids he gathered from the swamps.

Bud now is at a second crossroads in his life. He is recognized as one of the best fishermen in the area, but it is today a poor-paying business. He averages under $75 a week.

Much as he loves the mysterious Everglades, Bud feels he may have to leave them in order to make a better future for his children, who now number three.

"There comes a time when responsibility catches up with you," said Bud. "I guess I'd even consider working in an office, but I hate the thought of being indoors."

When I asked him what was the greatest thing he had learned from his solitary sojourn in this watery wilderness, he said without hesitating, "A degree of tolerance."

Man, Woman Held In Separate Slayings

CINCINNATI (AP)—A man and a woman faced murder charges here today in connection with separate Christmas Eve slayings.

In one case, Clyde Thompson, 34, was accused of having shot his wife Virginia, 41, during an argument.

In the other, Mrs. Frances Parks, 32, was accused of the slaying of her husband Charles, 34. Police said she fired a shotgun at her husband as he attempted to enter their apartment after she had had him arrested on a charge of assault and battery.

Parks had been released on bond

Blacksmith Held For Investigation Of Columbus Killing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Columbus police today are holding a 30-year-old blacksmith for investigation of murder. The man told a minister at a church here that he killed a man last January in a fight. Police have no record of a slaying.

The man, Donald Mack of Phoenix, Ariz., told police he has been running from his conscience ever since he hit a man, whom he could not identify.

Mack said he and two other men had been drinking and were in a warehouse near the railroad station here. He said he hit one of the men and the man fell to the floor. Mack said he could not revive him and thought he was dead, police said.

Since then, police quoted him saying, he has been roaming around the country and has not had a good night's sleep. He said he decided to confess and drove to Columbus from Phoenix and went into the first lighted church he saw here Christmas Eve.

Police theorized that the victim may have only been knocked unconscious and later walked away.

Christmas is 'Dog Day' Thanks to Elkhound

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP)—Christmas was a dog day for the Edsel Hughes family, thanks to Folly. Folly, their Norwegian elkhound gave them a Christmas present of 11 puppies.

Folly gave birth to her first pup at 10 p.m. Christmas Eve and the last one at 10 a.m. Christmas Day.

Hughes, an insurance salesman, gave most of the credit to his 8-year-old daughter, Mandy, for pulling Folly through the ordeal. Said Hughes: "She was right there with the hot stones, sterilized bottles and warm blankets and pretty well had the situation under control all by herself."

Teamsters Find Way To Keep AFL-CIO Jobs

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Harold J. Gibbons, an international vice president of the Teamsters Union, said Wednesday night some Teamster officials are retaining important positions with the AFL-CIO by taking out memberships in other unions.

"I have no idea how many Teamsters have taken out dual positions and it has never been discussed within the Teamsters as being a policy," Gibbons said.

The Teamsters Union has been expelled from the AFL-CIO.

Gibbons said William A. Lee, Teamsters international vice president from Chicago and president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, kept his AFL-CIO position by taking out membership in the Building Service Workers Union.
